Reception – 12:45 pm

“Richard Hannay was looking for something to spice up his boring life. His routine night out in the West End soon leaves him in the unprecedented situation of being the only person capable of saving London. Murder, mystery, and mayhem consume his life as he works desperately to clear his name and solve the mystery of The 39 Steps. A parody of the 1915 novel by John Buchan and the 1935 film by Alfred Hitchcock of the same name, The 39 Steps, mixes the thriller genre with the humor of Monty Python. This show is sure to have you on the edge of your seats with laughter and anticipation.”

Plan to gather with members, family and friends for the AAUW Northville-Novi benefit at the Tipping Point Theatre on Sunday afternoon, February 9, 2020. The reception prior to the performance with food and beverages will provide an occasion to socialize. Please consider purchasing tickets for family, friends, or as a special way to say “thanks” to someone. This is our major fund-raising event for the winter; proceeds will help us meet our financial goals. If you know you will not be able to attend, please try to recruit and encourage others to help “fill the house.”
